Weekly Update

We enjoyed our four day week of school this week! Even without having school on Monday to honor Labor Day, we still got a lot of learning in! We worked on comparing and contrasting, story structure, and inferring with supportive evidence during reading this week.

During math block, we finished up our unit on number sense (place value, rounding, addition, and subtraction) and began our unit on time and money. We will still be visiting concepts from previous units, through our daily math reviews. While there has been no "grade" assigned to the daily math reviews, they are corrected and recorded for data purposes. These help me to know what areas each student is excelling in and where their most significant needs fall. Please look these over with your child when they come home and discuss any errors that have been made. This is a great way to keep up to date on the concepts your child will be responsible for and where they may need some support.
