Weekly Update

Our third grade classroom has had a great week back to school after the holiday! I hope that each of you were able to relax and enjoy the students' time off, as well as the holiday season! The students did a wonderful job getting back into our routine and schedule this week and it made for a nice transition back into school.

In math, our focus is still on division. We learned about finding missing parts in division equations (dividend, divisor, and quotient). We will begin working with real-world problems that involve division and even take it up a step further to solve multiple-step problems. We will spend several days on the multiple-step problems, as these types of problems are typical of ISTEP questions.

We began a chapter in social studies on our environment. We studied topics like land and water, weather and climates, Earth's resources, and how we interact with our environment. This chapter will wrap up next week!
